Clinical Pharmacy Associates Launches Online Journal Review

Laurel, MD (June 21, 2011) – Clinical Pharmacy Associates, a leading provider of solutions that enable hospitals, nursing homes, and managed care providers to realize the benefits of superior pharmacy and medication management in the new era of accountable health care, today announced the launch of an online Journal Club. The purpose of the CPA Journal Club is to bring to the medical community tools, information, answers to questions, and commentary on the major issues facing practitioners.

The inaugural issue of CPA Journal Club features the exclusive CPA Journal Review format providing succinct one page review and insight into topical journal articles for busy practitioners.

“We’re excited to draw on our skills and insights to make CPA Journal Club a reality” said Ken Dandurand, Chief Executive Officer of Clinical Pharmacy Associates. “We believe that it will contribute in a meaningful way to practitioners’ ability to make well-informed medication decisions, and we view it as another demonstration of the important role our organization plays in advancing the practice of pharmacy.”

Also included in the issue is Commentary Spotlight, a series of authoritative white papers to assist health care professionals make decisions and solve critical problems.

The company has also launched *P&T on Demand*SM, a proprietary report from CPA that provides new drug evaluations, drug class reviews, new drug classifications and highlights of safety related drug changes in P&T committee-ready format.

Published monthly, CPA Journal Club is available free to medical professionals by completing a sign-in form on the CPA web site. P&T on Demand reports are available on the site for as little as $15 each, or pharmacy professionals can elect to purchase an annual subscription that gives them unlimited access to the full range of reports developed by CPA's Drug Information Center.

“Better medication management improves drug safety for patients,” said Dr. Christopher Keeyes, Co-founder and President of CPA. “Just as important, it enables organizations to control and reduce one of the most significant costs associated with health care today.”
